

Dear Diary

Today something astonishing happened! It all started when Michael came over with some work and a book. I told him about my diary which I had written about him me and Skellig, whilst I was telling him that is when I remembered he will be waiting for us. So, I took Michael to my apartment, the windows are boarded up and there is a danger door on the front of the apartment, I have the only key, so I know Skellig is protected there.

When we arrived at the dilapidated apartment we went in and saw he was gone my heart thudded I felt a lump in my throat, when we searched for him, we found him halfway up the stairs, when Michael asked where he was going, he said higher in a squeaky voice, so we took him higher through the building. When we got to the top of the building, we gave him food and beer, he did not have much interest in that though when he noticed the pile of blankets on the floor, he crawled over on all fours panting and when he settled down, I slid his jacket off, and that's when we saw it, Skellig had these almighty, wings I gasped in amazement, It was marvellous, It was magnificent.
